Chile

[redacted] said that a full report of the effectiveness of U.S. work on the Chilean elections would be submitted to the 303 Committee. It was however pertinent to note now that of the 12 people to whom we had given support, 10 were elected. Also, while it was true that the Socialist Splitter Party which we had assisted had elected no congressmen, it had pulled away enough votes from the Socialist Party to lose the Socialists six or seven seats that they otherwise would have won. 1.5(c)
